Legal Wheels May Roll Over Regents

Continuing his drive to prevent the Meeting Law." construction of a five-story classroom-office building on the mall in front of the UNO administration building, Omaha attorney Ephraim L. Marks hinted at legal action directed against the University of Nebraska Board of Regents last week.

In an open letter to the Regents' Chairman, Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln, Marks called the idea of putting a new structure on the scenic mall, "roughly comparable to building a motel in front of the national capitol in Washington." He also maintained that "... it is high time that the Regents brought themselves into compliance with the Public Meeting Law of the State of Nebraska. Particularly obnoxious and legally vulnerable are the Catch 22 provisions of your present by-laws under which it is rendered practically impossible for any aggrieved person to appear on your agenda. without special dispensation.

Marks "like a motel in front of the Capitol"

"In my opinion," he went on, "these and other provisions of your present by-laws, being in violation of Nebraska statutes, bring into serious question the legal validity of many of your actions taken since 1967, the effective date of the Public

The lawyer, who has voiced his differences with the Board of Regents on other issues in the past, most notably at the Sept. 11 meeting in Lincoln, stated that "resentment" of "past arbitrary actions" of the Regents "is mounting on and off the UNO campus. Unless you intend to be totally unresponsive to public sentiment," Marks continued, "I think you should seriously consider these matters, as well as the other matters set forth in my remarks to your Board on September 11. In all fairness, Mr. Schwartzkopf, the actions of your Board of Regents are such as, in my opinion, to impose legal liability personally upon yourself and the other Regents for damages.'

Further in this connection, in a letter to The Gateway, Marks contended, "If all else fails, I intend on behalf of some interested taxpayers to file a suit against the Regents personally for malfeasance and misfeasance in office. I hope I am not forced to this extremity, but I believe it will be necessary unless they can be made to listen to reason.'

Marks suggested UNO students should be in the forefront of the efforts to retain the mall and the trees now on it by organizing a "Save the Mall" campaign, aiding in the petition drive sponsored by the UNO Interior Design Club and its president Fred Morinelli, and pressuring the administration and Regents.

However, Marks emphasized he was "not suggesting disorders of any kind, since I think they are counter-productive. What I am thinking of is in terms of an orderly demonstration either by a dramatic form of short class stoppage, a wearing of black arm bands, or some other dramatichappening which would capture the attention of the media.

Marks, who was unable to attend the Sept. 24 Regents by-law revision meeting due to minor surgery, also urged the Board members to reconsider their promotion of the Omaha campus planner, whom he referred to as "a man of demonstrated ineptness and incompetence."

He was referring to the recent naming of former Director of Campus Planning Dr. Rex Engebretson as Assistant to the Chancellor for Campus Planning. The move did not necessarily involve a promotion but, according to Engebretson, simply clarified "the line of administrative responsibility to the Chancellor's office."

The Regents have denied the allegations contained in Marks' letter and maintain they are in full complaince with all Nebraska statutes.

Big Regent Seat

When S. H. Brauer pulled out of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents' race last month, it seemed to leave incumbent Regent Edward Schwartzkopf with a clear field for re-election to another six-year term.

But that was not the end of

The filing deadline for petitions to place additional names on the November ballot for non-partisan races was a week ago last Monday. Shortly before time ran out a Lincoln woman, Jean Theisen, presented to Secretary of State Allen Beermann's office a 754-signature petition to place her name on the ballot as a challenger to Regent Schwartzkopf. At least 750 signatures of registered voters are necessary to put a name in nomination. Theisen's petition had to be checked for errors by the Secretary of State to determine if the document was legitimate and contained an adequate number of names.

While it may have seemed for time that incumbent Schwartzkopf should prepare for some campaign competition this November, he was informed by Beerman's office last week that he could relax after all. Preliminary checks on 150 of the 754 names on the Theisen petition showed that 41 persons in the group were ineligible to sign, most because they had failed to register to vote. The disqualification of those names invalidated the petition, dropping the number of signatures below the required university system or the state of 750. As a result, Board of Nebraska.

Regents Chairman Schwartzkopf will virtually be assured re-election.

Brauer, who made the situation possible by originally dropping out of the race, placed second in the Board of Regents' primary race last Spring, and withdrew for personal reasons saying he could not remain in the contest in good faith since he would not have time to campaign and would be unable to fulfill his obligations as a regent if elected.

Schwartzkopf . . . home free

Incumbent Schwartzkopf was one of the two Regents who recently voted not to cut the university administration's proposed budget, saying he felt cutting the two million dollars from university funds would not be in the best interests of the

Search Committee

Chancellor Ronald Roskens has announced the appointment of a committee to recommend individuals to fill the post of Vice-Chancellor for Business and Finance.

Members of the university community are encouraged to make recommendations to the committee of individuals interested in and qualified for the position. Nominations to be considered must be in the hands of the committee before their meeting on October 2, at 9:30 a.m. The deadline for applying for the position is Friday, October 13. A job description is available in Dean Kennedy's office, Kayser Hall, 326.

The Consultative and Search Committee to find a new Business and Finance Vice-Chancellor is made up of the following persons:

Dr. Paul Kennedy, dean, College of Education, Chairman; Dr. William Hockett, professor, accounting; Mr. James Ochsner, director of business services; Dr. Gale Oleson, director, guidance services; Richard Thompsett, alumni representative; and Mary Wees, UNO student body vice-president, student representative.

Editorial Constant Effectively Senate Needs Support appeared to take the Student Senate to task for being an ineffective vehicle for accomplishing the ends desired by most students.

This was not intended per se, and we hope it was not construed in this manner. although it seems this might be the case (see letter below).

Actually, what was intended was a compliment of sorts.

The problem lies not with the present campus activists and their actions, but rather with those thousands of students who do absolutely nothing in connection few who do are overloaded with work and, of themselves to the university. consequently, over-represented in student decision-making. Regardless of their talents and commitment to UNO, these individuals at some point must inevitably become spread too thin.

Examined from another angle, we might say it is remarkable that anything is accomplished at all with only a handful of active students literally occupied day and night with a multitude of campus affairs. In this case we should congratulate those who

In an editorial last issue we may have do achieve results in those areas of student concern.

> Nevertheless, we are compelled to reiterate that some commitment by many is still more desirable than simply the total commitment of a few, laudable as it may

> The part-time activity of a few students cannot be expected to act as a counterbalancing force to protect the interests of their constituency or to sufficiently represent that constituency when dealing co-operatively with full-time paid staff administrators.

It is certainly not the fault of the with the university outside of their regular Student Senate or any other group of studies. The result of the students if they take - or, as is often the "don't-give-a-damn" attitude is that the case, make — the time to contribute a part > Complaining that UNO is not as "good" as other college campuses is useless unless the complaints are voiced in the places where they can have some effect. The difference between a "good" and a "bad" campus is often directly dependent upon the amount of student involvement. A small number of persons cannot change it and should not be condemned if they fail to do so.

The Open Gate

Where Were They

How effective is the Student Senate? Generally, they are effective if a quorum can be reached. On September 21, a regularly scheduled meeting of the Student Senate failed to take place because 15 Senators (out of 30) failed to show; two less than needed for a quorum.

Of these total absences, five were excused, leaving 10 apparently. disinterested Senators, in addition there were two vacant seats to be filled.

A Senator, duly elected by his/her constituency, has a moral obligation to represent that constituency. Unexcused absences for regularly scheduled Senate meetings displays total inconsideration and irresponsibility for constituents and fellow Senators, as does an excessive amount of excused absences.

The Senate constitution Section II, Attendance, reads "If a member shall miss 2 regularly scheduled meetings without prior notice or without a reason which shall be deemed extenuating, the Senate shall select a replacement for the delinquent member and notify the delinquent member of his removal."

In addition a Senate resolution passed February 24, 1972 authorizes no more than three (3) excused absences. It would appear that students interested enough to run for the Senate would also be interested enough to attend Senate meetings. We the undersigned Senators hereby demand enforcement of the Constitution regardless of who the Senator may be.

Dear Sirs,

I have to question your approach to the Richard Brown (Breakaway) situation. I have read all of the summer Gateway stories on Brown and I must say that all facts were not included in your recent editorial.

First of all, you did not mention anything about the 'natural delays caused. by summer." Secondly, Brown's policy of maximum involvement had to be changed because all of his staff was quitting on him.

Another thing was that Brown's 184 original pages were cut down to 128 by the (Student) Senate. This would naturally take more time to complete than the original number.

Then there is the fact that the Senate only gave him $4,000 extra dollars over his original budget to work with. This caused a great deal of difficulty because Brown could not afford to pay the people he promised to pay for their stories, work, etc. And of course, who can put out a magazine less than six months late when they receive all that harassment? This is unfair to Brown.

By"the way, when is the Breakaway coming out? Signed,

Former Breakaway writer Gary Norton

Editorial Note: The printers refuse to predict when the Spring '72 issue of the magazine might be out, but they did tell the Gateway that Brown is at least $1,000 over his budget. The Gateway apologizes for omitting this information.

The President Is Richard M. Nixon

When will Nixon tell us what he plans to do if he is re-elected? Nixon's cabinet reminds us what is wrong with his opponent's (McGovern) detailed plans, but fails to tell us of Nixon's.

We are promised tax reform after he is re-elected; is it too much to ask if it will hurt the middle and working classes as his Wage/Price controls have, where enforcement is on wages but not on prices?

Nixon has promised to keep price increases under 3 per cent the first year; it is only 11 months and inflation is over 5 per cent so far. During his last campaign, Nixon promised the impossible: a balanced budget. During his four years we have had the highest deficit during peace time.

What has Nixon accomplished in his administration? Has he kept his promises to end inflation, reduce unemployment. or end the rising crime rates? Can you remember back to the invasion of Laos and Cambodia, or Kent and Jackson State? Has Nixon ended the war? No! He has widened the War. The domino theory in reverse. Nixon's statement, "Any administration that can't end the war in four years does not deserve to be re-elected." Nixon obviously meant the war on poverty would be ended in four years, and this is one program he has accomplished.

And how do you measure the strengthening of the nation's moral fiber? Agnew has brought us together on the right, or on the left, making it popular to hate and be prejudiced again. He has even reminded us of our ethnic backgrounds, HONESTY, no one has been able to prove a thing against Dick and the boys. Hell, it's legal for the milk industry to give money to the re-election of a good President, especially when he raises the price supports. You can't prove a thing against Dick and the boys. It's good to know that this country is manipulated by one smart cookie. - Dave Newell

Deserving Office, Deserving President

Only 4 years ago, the U.S. had 600,000 troops in Viet Nam, supported by huge draft calls and a 44% budget appropriation for defense.

A massive bureaucracy groped for control of the environmental crisis.

Inflation spiraled, in 1968, at the rate of 4.9 per cent.

For two decades, the People's Republic of China had floated in a diplomatic limbo.

Youth's growing political awareness seemed futile in an unreceptive Establishment.

This was the situation when Richard Nixon took office. Now, in 1972, the all-volunteer army of '73 and the sub-50,000 troop level make the Viet Nam military machine of 1968 only so much history.

A streamlined defense appropriation of 34 per cent is as significant, though perhaps not as dramatic, as the President's historic journey to China.

As the Environmental Agency seeks to control pollution, the Wage-Price Commission seeks to control inflation, bringing the level down to a healthy 2.9 per

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS RACE

This week's section of Outside the Gate features interviews with the various candidates for County Commissioner for Douglas County. This year, two openings are available on the board. There are four candidates, two from each party, vying for the two seats.

The Gateway was able to interview only three of the candidates. Al "Pat" Pattavina was unavailable for comment. The Gateway hopes to contact Mr. Pattavina at a later date.

It is the opinion of the Gateway staff, that as many candidates as possible should be contacted and interviewed for the benefit of the UNO student body. We suggest that interested students should take time and study the various candidates interviewed by the Gateway. We also suggest that you cut out the interviews, and use them as a voter's guide on election day, November 7.

We are trying to be as objective as we can with the interviews. We don't promise full objectivity, but neither can any other news agency. No news agency can be completely objective in coverage, and it would be coy to expect it. But we think that while you read through the interviews, you will find the Gateway has been quite fair and objective in the interviews.

County Elections

The main issue that faces county government is the proposed city-county merger. The city-county scheme has been debated for quite some time, and it will continue to be debated.

As expected, all three candidates interviewed were basically against the city-county merger. They all said there really isn't any duplication of services, and that city officials are making false promises about saving the taxpayers money by a merger. The arguments the candidates presented concerning the merger are very strong. They point out that both governments of Omaha and Douglas County are compact anyway, and a merger wouldn't really benefit anyone. But all candidates want the merger problem studied further. They all point out there is a lack of studies and information concerning an Omaha-Douglas County merger.

The candidates also disagreed with the City-county building plan. Dan Lynch felt the county should never of consented to build a new building with the city. He felt if the county needed a new building, then it could have been built at a lower price at another location.

P. J. Morgan disagrees with Lynch. Morgan felt a new city-county building would be beneficial to downtown Omaha. He thinks the new building will be a type of focal point of downtown Omaha.

Another disagreement among the candidates was over the costs of county government. Conservative Simon A. Simon accuses the county of a "runaway budget." Dan Lynch disagrees, and has stated that with the modernization of county government, the costs of county government has actually gone down in the twelve years he has been a commissioner.

All the candidates didn't give any new ideas that they would like to see instituted by the county. They all want to see much more efficiency in government, and they would like to see the county become more responsive to the people.

Hot the county races will go

The county commissioners race will be a tight one. On the Democratic side you have incumbent Dan Lynch running for a fourth term, and Al "Pat" Pattavina. Dan Lynch is certainly predicted to get the nod for another four year term. He is well known by all Democrats and Republicans alike. He is considered a hard worker, and has the record to prove it.

Pattavina has name recognition. People will think they are voting for the Public Safety Director Al Pattavina, when they vote for Al "Pat" Pattavina. But they are not the same person, thus there will be some confusion by the voter.

On the Republican side, P. J. Morgan has the best chances. He has a good record from his two years in the Legislature. He also has youth working in his favor.

Simon A. Simon, even though he is running as a Conservative, is well-known by many Republicans. He has had a good record in local government for many years, but the 76 year-old Simon has age working against him.

This reporter does not care to make predictions, now, especially since I'm not very good at predictions. But from the information I can pick up from various Democrats and Republicans, and the various City Hall watchers; it looks like Dan Lynch will definitely get re-elected. Lynch had good returns during the Primary, and he will get a lot of votes from Republicans along with the high Democratic vote he will receive.

Who will get the second commissioners seat is hard to tell. It looks like it will be a close race between P. J. Morgan and Pat Pattavina for the seat. Pattavina, as mentioned earlier, has name recognition, but P. J. Morgan has a good organization supporting him. Morgan also has good appeal with some Democrats too.

Simon A. Simon is well-known too, but he will probably run in last place. The former judge has a lot of support, especially from old-line Republicans, but his age may be a factor.

P.J. Seeks County Seat

P. J. Morgan is one of the two Republicans running for County Commissioner. Morgan manages the P. J. Morgan Company which deals in real estate investments throughout the city of Omaha. These real estate properties include apartment complexes and various other types of real estate.

The 32 year-old Morgan has been a State Senator for the past two years, representing the 4th Legislative District located in southwest Omaha. One of Morgan's opponents felt he didn't have political experience, but Morgan said, "Stepping down from the legislature to a county position certainly means going to a less prestigious job, but I really want to get involved in the affairs of the community."

Morgan feels he is well qualified to be a county Commissioner. Morgan thinks his two year record in the Legislature speaks for himself.

"While in the Legislature, I sponsored many bills to benefit the people. For instance, I sponsored a bill, and got it passed, that changed our SID (Sanitary Improvement District) laws. We had SIDs set up where a private developer could go into the district and build whatever he wanted to improve the area. Some developers were building golf courses and clubhouses in these districts. I thought it was unfair for theese developers to be granted special privileges in the SIDs while many people were living on unpaved streets without getting the privilege of an SID. Thus, I sponsored a bill which made developers present a detailed plan to the City Council before they are granted SID rights."

Helped UNO

"I also helped in setting up parking for UNO students at Ak-Sar-Ben while in the Legislature." Morgan introduced a bill that prevented UNO from taking Elmwood Park area for use of expansion. "I think we don't have adequate enough green space, so I was opposed to the right of UNO having eminent domain over Elmwood Park. The bill I sponsored gave UNO eminent domain rights, but not over park lands.

Morgan sponsored a bill giving Omaha two juvenile court judges, "The juvenile court was handling 1800 cases a year and that was too much of a burden on the court, So I passed a bill which gave the juvenile court two judges."

Morgan was successful in passing a bill to help disabled veterans. Another Morgan sponsored bill calls for new license plates to be issued every year starting in 1974. "Oddly enough, the state fiscal department found that we would save $70,000 a year by issuing new plates instead of tags every year. So starting in 1974, Nebraskans will receive new license plates on a yearly basis."

City-county Merger
Morgan felt he wasn't prepared to make a definite
"yes" or "no" concerning a city-county merger. He, like the other candidates, felt there wasn't enough information on hand to show if Omaha and Douglas County would benefit from such a merger.

Eleanor Loses Luggage

Even though her luggage wasn't so lucky, Eleanor McGovern arrived in Omaha last Wednesday night safe and sound. Mrs. McGovern arrived in Omaha from Kansas City after a full day of campaigning in Missouri. Because her luggage was lost (the name of the airline will remain confidential), Mrs. McGovern was an hour and a half late for a scheduled rally at the Ranch Room of the Ranch Bowl on So. 72nd St.

The estimated 200 people at the Ranch Bowl munched on various snacks and sandwiches provided for the event, while waiting on Mrs. McGovern's arrival. The guests were also treated to a Who's Who variety of politicians mingling within the crowd gathering support.

After an hour of waiting, Dick Fellman, the McGovern campaign director for Omaha, announced that Mrs. McGovern's luggage was located, and the Omaha Police were dispatched to the airport to recover the delinquent Samsonite. Thus,

Mrs. McGovern was on her way over for her speech.

After another half an hour, cheers went up through the crows; starting from the back, and moving towards the podium. Hidden from the much bigger people around her, the less than normal sized Eleanor emerged from the crowd with a charming smile befitting for a hopeful First Lady.

Gov. J. J. Exon opened with a speech citing the first Eleanor in the White House, Eleanor Roosevelt. Exon said the White House "needs another Eleanor." Exon also pointed out that he too was originally from South Dakota, and was raised about 30 miles away from Avon, South Dakota where McGovern grew up.

"Nebraska needs a man from S.D."

Mrs. McGovern, after being introduced by the governor, remarked that she felt at home in Nebraska because it "seemed like all South Dakotans were living in Nebraska." She also said Sen. McGovern "has long been identified with the farmer," and that "Nebraska is a state that needs a man from South Dakota."

Referring to the fact that Nebraska is so-called "Nixon Country," Mrs. McGovern incumbent member of the Board of County Commissioners is seeking his fourth term on the board. The 43 year-old Lynch has served as a County Commissioner for the past 12 years. He is the President of the County Board and active in all aspects of County Officials.

Lynch has a reputation as a hard worker with interest in all aspects of county government. One of Lynch's opponents praised Lynch for doing his "homework" in county affairs.

Lynch is a plumbing contractor, and with his brothers, he owns and operates Phil C. Lynch Plumbing Co. He resides in tthe Florence district of Omaha.

Lynch "... overlap of services?" Should Omaha and Douglas County merge governments?

Lynch replied, "There isn't really a yes or no answer to that question. First of all, we must see if there is any justification for change. Does Omaha and Douglas County really have overlap of services?"

Lynch elaborated, "We have one tax assessor, one treasurer, one juvenile court, and so on, serving both Omaha and Douglas_ County. So we don't really have any overlapping.

"We have fifteen school districts, five fire districts, six cities and villages, two educational service units, one vocational college, and so on. Maybe we should talk about merging some of these services instead of the Omaha Douglas County governments.'

Lynch went on to say that even though city-county mergers may have worked in cities such as Indianapolis, or Norfolk, Va., he felt because of the geographical makeup of Douglas County, he wasn't so sure that a city-county merger would be that beneficial. He explained that many cities which merged with their counties had to because of the number of suburbs and smaller cities around the metropolitan areas of these particular cities.

"Lose identity of government" He also went on to say that with this type of merger, we would lose our "system of government.

"Under city government we have a non-partisan city council and a council which does not run by district. Will this gie adequate representation of all the people in the county?"

Summing up the city-county merger plans, Lynch said he felt it was becoming a "hypocritical Commissioners by district?

Lynch felt the county commissioners should also run by district. He also felt the Omaha City Council should also be elected by districts.

Talking about some of the

progress the County Board has made in the last twelve years since he has been a commissioner, Lynch replied, "There has been a great amount a of progress in County government since I've been a Commissioner. I haven't done it myself, but I'm proud to have taken part in some of these accomplishments.

"We've developed a data processing service with all of the County records on the computer. We have even set up branch county offices throughout the county with data processing services in these offices.

"When I was elected to the board twelve years ago, the conditions in the Douglas Dan Lynch, currently an identifying officials" of local County Hospital were scandalous. Conditions have improved since then. You should take a tour of the hospital now.'

> Lynch also emphasized improvements in benefits to county employees. "Twelve years ago the average age of the county employee was 56 years-old. At that time we had no pension plans, or mandatory retirement programs. We had many employees in their nineties. But now with improved pension and mandatory retirement plans, the average age in county government is 36 years-old.'

City-county bldg. a "boondogle"

Lynch opposed having a. city-county building because of the "way it was set up," and the costs for the new structure were "completely out of line." Lynch felt that if the county needed a new building then it could have been built anywhere in Omaha. 'We studied eleven different possibilities for a new location for the building."

He said the new structure would cost the taxpayers $700,000 a year to maintain. 'That comes out to about $9 a square foot," Lynch explained. "I think it could have been built cheaper at a different site.'

Summing up his feelings about the city-county building, Lynch replied, "It's a monument of the political ineptness of the leaders of Omaha."

"... like to see campus expand" Asked about UNO's expansion problems, Lynch said. "I'm not really all that familiar with UNO's problems, but I think my major concern is with the way they acquire property. But I would like to see the campus expand."

Lynch also said he would like to see continuing improvements at UNO including the return of the School of Engineering. He also praised the medical center.

Simon Wants Balanced Budget

The second Republican running for Douglas County Board is Simon A. Simon. "I'm a registered Republican," Simon explains, "but I'm running as a Conservative." Active in Douglas County politics for many years, the 76 year-old Simon was a former municipal judge, and a city prosecutor. He was also a fire commissioner for three years, of one of the best fire departments in the country.

Simon said he is running for the county board because the present board is made up of all Democrats. He thinks the county government has become a "big business" and this has caused a "runaway budget."

"The taxes are unbearable, especially to senior citizens and retired people who are living on a fixed income." Simon also emphasized that it is hard for these people because, "their taxes are going all the time, and it is really working a hardship on them.'

Simon also pointed out, "There is another group of people also on a fixed income because of the rising cost of living, and that is the young people who are just getting married and starting out. They are also hurt by high taxes.'

City county merger On whether there should be a city-county merger, Simon said, "There is really no 'yes' or 'no' answer to that question. But I would have to oppose it under our present city charter. My main reason is that under our present city charter, the Mayor of Omaha appoints all the heads of departments. And, he can hire and fire them at will. I feel people are entitled to representation by electing their heads of departments; rather than have one person, the Mayor, have the power to hire and fire people. If this isn't merger plan." Simon also thinks there really isn't any duplication of services between the city and county. He pointed out that under a city-county merger plan, fire departments and police departments in the rural Douglas changed, then I will oppose the

Simon A. Simon

County areas would have to merge with the existing Omaha agencies, and this would cost the taxpayers more money. He felt that some of the volunteer fire departments would have to go under a full time system, and this would cost a lot of tax dollars.

Simon also pointed out that. agencies such as the County Treasurer, Register of Deeds, and etc., serve the whole county, so there is no duplication of services made a study of city-county mergers in about 1965, but it wasn't too comprehensive," Morgan explained. Because of this, Morgan introduced a bill to authorize the League of Women Voters to conduct a study of a possible Omaha-Douglas County merger.

"I believe that we have to give this problem careful study. I (Cont'd on Page 6)

Morgan did emphasize that he too, like the other candidates, didn't think there was that much duplication of services between the city and the county.

County Board all Democrats

Morgan said one of the reasons why he was running for county board was because the current County Board of Commissioners was made up entirely of Democrats. "Government should be based on a system of checks and balances, and it isn't fair to have all Democrats on the County Morgan said while he was serving in the Legislature, hearings concerning CATV came before his committee. "Tom Kelly, the Nebraska National Committeeman for the Democratic party came before my committee on behalf of a particular cable TV firm. I asked him why he wanted the Douglas County Board to decide on CATV in the Omaha area, and he replied, 'because they are all Democrats.' I voted against having the county board vote on CATV because of that remark. Then a few months later, the Douglas County Board voted to have a CATV contract granted to the particular company that Tom Kelly represented.'

Morgan said if elected to the County Board, he will try to make himself as accessible to the people as much as he could, because he was quite interested in their problems throughout the county. "I also want to go out to the people and help them understand how their $40 million is spent in the county."

Praised Roskens appointment Asked about UNO's problems, Morgan said he is in favor of UNO expansion, but "we should study statistics, "The Nebraska Legislature because as it now stands; UNO's enrollment is pretty stable. We . should study these statistics and then plan expansion.'

"I'm also pleased with the Board of Regents' selection of Chancellor Roskens. Even though it's too early to really judge Roskens, I like him because he is straight-forward on what he wants."

Morgan did criticize the amount of money UNO paid to obtain the Milder property just west of the campus. "UNO paid too much for the Milder property," Morgan said.

Simon

think we could go to cities that have merged and study these cities. But, I think this question needs a lot of study and thinking before we go ahead with it."

"Every county commissioner has a business"

Simon criticized the present county board because, "Every county commissioner now has a business, and he has to devote his full time to that business. County business is just a part time job to him."

Simon believes that any new programs the county starts should have "time and study" devoted to them. We should have programs that are definitely in the form of patriotism, Simon said. "I think we have been lax in this area. I think we should take more time for programs of patriotism and dedication of country.'

Simon also believes in organizing community baseball and football leagues, and have parents "devote more time to their children instead of letting them run around without any supervision."

What about UNO?

Simon said he has been interested in UNO because he had a son attend UNO many years back, when the present

(Editor's Note: The following story first appeared in the Sept. 8, 1939 Gateway)

Workmen got a pleasant surprise this morning as students showed up to help them out on the new building on our new 60th and

Upperclassman Scott Masterson was one of the first to lend a hand, and soon all the guys were hefting bricks onto the mortar and adding to the walls of what will some day be our Administration

Don't worry, the students didn't miss any classes as they had Physical Health scheduled and Coach Leonard Renondo said "lifting bricks and helping the workmen would seem to be a good physical workout. It is good to see they are coming up with original ideas."

The workmen had to help out the Cardinals, though. The students didn't follow the plumb bob and could have created a crooked wall. The alumni certainly wouldn't approve of that!

But the students didn't come over to the construction site originally for such herculean tasks. They first ventured there simply. to view the hard workmen. But soon, with the OU spirit, they were pitching in!

Steve Pivovar

The Third Eye . . . The Third Eye .

"Three second" are left on the clock. UNO is in a "fourth and 50" situation. Our "coaches" must call the play that will either "win" or "lose" the big "game" for us.

No, sport fans, this is not a situation from a UNO football contest. It is, however, an attempt to put into sporting terms the situation this university is faced with.

Each term has its own meaning.

"Three seconds" is used to show that time is running out for the university. Two schools are in danger of losing their accreditation. And, as anyone knows, a school without accreditation is like a football without air.

The long yardage situation marks the long way UNO has to go to make a "first down" on its way in becoming a first class university. Our "coaches" represent that likable bunch of fellows, the university Regents. They're in charge of calling the big "play."

Roskens Long Bomb

The play suggested by assistant coach Roskens (UNO Chancellor Ronald) was a 1.1 million addition to UNO's budget. This money could be the "long bomb" the Mavericks needed to help ease some of the pressure on overworked teachers and some of the under-taught students.

The play called by head coach Regents was a half million cut of the original request, comparable to a fullback dive into the middle.

This play selection makes for a certain "loss." Coming out on the losing side could not only mean the loss of accreditation but more importantly, could put graduates of this university in a serious position in a bigger "game."

The long bomb of Roskens may not have won the game instantaneously, but it would have kept the drive going. Above all, it would have made a lot more sense than a fullback dive into the middle of oblivion.

Gateway Day Saturday

This Saturday, the Gateway gives rebirth to the old practice of "Gateway Day" at a UNO football game.

The last such day was held two years ago and is an attempt to get more students out for the Mavericks contest with Washburn.

The game will be the conference opener for the now 3-0 Mavericks.

In the attempt to "lure" students to the game, the Gateway will offer these incentives:

1. A two-for-one admission policy in which the student is allowed to bring a guest and both are admitted on the showing of the student's ID card.

2. Prizes. You can't pass this one up as local merchants have donated a heap of prizes that will be raffled off during halftime. Watch Wednesday's Gateway for a complete prize list.

3. Fred Gerardi's pidgeon show. Explanation of this one will be for your own observations.

Remember, you have to be present to win a prize, so come on out to the game. That's Saturday, 1:30 at the campus stadium.

Joe Willie On Top

Last week, an item in this column told of the wonderful mail I receive. This week, the mail brought much happier tidings.

One item received was a "1972 Pro Quarterback Handbook." Aside from the usual schedules, super bowl histories, some records; the handbook contains a fascinating system of rating quarterbacks.

Published by "football weekly," the handbook rates quarterbacks on six points. These are his set up and release, his ability to throw short, to throw long, to read a defense, his adaptability (adjustments to specific situations), and his leadership abilities.

No maximum point total was set but five points in any category were toppers.

On the six point scale, the top quarterback in the NFL is none other than Joe Willie Namath.

Tagge Likely Starter
Namath tallied 26.0 points for the six categories. He rated 4.5 points for his abilities to throw long, short, lead and read defenses. His adaptability and set up earned him 4.0.

Number two with a total of 23.0 was San Diego's John Hadl.

Roger Staubach of the Cowboys, Sonny Jurgensen from Washington, Miami's Bob Griese and Greg Landry of Detroit were tied for third at 23.0.

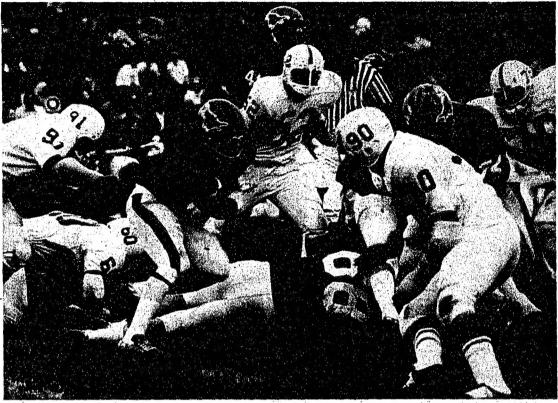

Fourth place was a three-way tie at 22.5 with the Kansas City Chief's Len Dawson, John Brodie of the 49ers, and Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton.

Archie Manning of New Orleans was fifth with a 20.5 total.

The deciding mark between an exceptional quarterback and the average signal caller was set at 20. At this mark were Baltimore's John Unitas, L.A.'s Roman Gabriel, New England's Jim Plunkett and surprising Bob Berry from Atlanta.

Marks of five were hard to come by as only Dawson and Unitas received fives for their ability to read defenses and Tarkenton for his adaptability. Incidentally, the forecast for former Husker Jerry Tagge is "a likely starter . . . a star of the future . . . classified a winner in college competition!

Stippery Charlie McWhorter, 23, weaves his way through Morningside defense for a short gain.

Morningside Tests UNO Defense, Mavericks 'Pass' in 17-8 Victory

Morningside put UNO's much heralded defense to a severe test but the Mavericks defenders put on another clutch fourth quarter effort in a 17-8 victory Saturday afternoon.

The Maverick defensive squad protected a slim 10-8 fourth quarter lead with two furious defensive stands.

In addition, the defenders scored on Tom Zimmerman's pass interception and set up a 32-yard Fred Tichauer field goal with a fumble recovery.

Last week against Northwest Missouri, the UNO defensive squad held the Bearcats scoreless in the fourth quarter while the offense responded for 17 points in a 45-28 win.

Behind 10-0, Morningside staged an eight play 80 yard drive and added a two point conversion to cut the lead to 10-8 with 7:42 left in the game.

During the drive, Chief quarterback Joe Malsam continually found open receivers and a bit of apprehension settled 6,200.

The apprehesion proved unfounded as the UNO defenders dropped Morningside for 27 yards in losses in the Chiefs' final two possessions.

Offensively, the game was extremely even. UNO ran 64 plays and gained 251 yards in total offense while Morningside totaled 247 yards on 65 plays.

Charlie McWhorter was held to 78 yards rushing by a veteran Morningside defense. The slippery Omaha North grad made up for his first game below 100 yards rushing this season bycatching five passes for 92 yards including a 47-yard scoring catch.

Bob Bangtson, subbing for the injured Angelo Intile, passed for 128 yards on an 8 of 13 performance.

Morningside's Mark Aeilts led all rushers with 86 yards on 24 carries.

UNO took a 2-0 lead five seconds into a second quarter on Tichauer's fifth field goal of the over the Band Day crowd of year. The kick came after a 59 yard drive stalled on the Chief's 15-yard line.

Jesse Kendle and Bill Kozel teamed to set the kick up. Kendle forced Malsam to fumble and Kozel covered the lost ball on the UNO 41.

Bangtson found McWhorter for a 25-yard completion to move into Morningside territory.

Five straight rushes moved the ball to the 15. The Mavericks opted for the three pointer on a fourth and two situation.

The hosts took a 10-0 lead midway through the second quarter on McWhorter's scoring reception. The Mavericks moved the ball 83 yards in 10 plays following a Morningside punt.

McWhorter and Billy Walker took turns moving the ball into Morningside territory. Walker bulled one yard on a fourth and one situation on the Morningside 45 to keep the drive alive.

A five yard penalty, a Walker gain of two and an incomplete pass brought up third and 13 (Cont'd on Page 8)

UNO Easily Wins Wesleyan Meet

UNO captured seven of the top 15 places to make shambles of the competition at the Nebraska Wesleyan Cross Country Invitational last Friday at Lincoln's Pioneer Park.

Coach Lloyd Cardwell's highly successful harriers tallied 35 points to easily outdistance second place Kearney State. The Antelopes scored 69 points while Concordia was third with 80 and host Wesleyan's 82 point total was good for fourth in the eight team meet.

Amazing Jack Schroer led the Mavericks with a second place finish. He toured the four mile course in 20:09.

Concordia's Don Cloeter avenged a dual loss suffered to Schroer last week. The 1970 NAIA All-American timed in at 20:07 for a two second win over the UNO freshman.

Tom Hahr finished third out of the field of approximately 56 runners. He easily beat Wesleyan ace Ron Greeno for the spot with a time of 20:12. Greeno ran 20:32.

Cardwell was again pleased with his squad's performance as "most of the boys ran better than they ever have before."

Mike McCormick finished ninth (20:58), Lance Herold was tenth (21:01), Tom McCormick ended up 11th (21:09), squad captain John Hawkins 12th (21:11) and Mark Wayne finished 14th (21:22) as UNO picked up a maximum seven medals.

Cardwell said his squad is as much as "two weeks ahead of last year's squad as far as training and shape are concerned." Last season's team finished ninth in the NAIA.

He singled out Herold as the individual who has made the biggest improvement timewise. He was quick to add that all squad members have made tremendous improvements.

"If we continue to improve, I think we have a tremendous chance to repeat as conference champs and finish high in the nationals," he said.

Saturday, the Mavericks will be at the Doane Invitational where they will compete against most of the same teams they ran against at Wesleyan.

UNO Victory Key: Not Folding During Crisis

Al Caniglia was a lot calmer than some UNO football fans Saturday afternoon.

While many a fan fretted Morningside's passing success, Caniglia wasn't as concerned as one might think he would be.

Citing statistics, Caniglia stated that "anytime you put the ball in the air 30 times, the passes will be caught."

"People don't seem to panic as much when a team runs for 25 yards," he said, "but let someone complete a 25-yard pass and every one gets all excited."

He credited Jim Schipull of being a "fine ball player," pointing out that Schipull made over half of the Chiefs' receptions.

When asked if he thought there was a key element in the 17-8 win, Al replied, "The key was our boys not folding in a crisis

He said that when Morningside closed the gap to 10-8, both his offensive and defensive squad rose to the situation and their play secured the win.

"We're not ready to give anything away," he said. "This is something that's been lacking the past few years."

Exceptional play from Tom Zimmerman and Bill Kozel drew their coach's praise. Caniglia called Charlie McWhorter's 47 yard touchdown run with a Bob Bangtson screen pass "outasite" adding that "Charlie used so many moves it was unbelievable." He also complimented Fred Tichauer's kicking.

Caniglia said that "We'll just have to wait and see how long Mark Poole will be gone." Poole broke a bone in his foot in a Friday practice and could be lost from four weeks to as much as the entire from the Chiefs' 47. McWhorter then took Bangtson's screen pass and weaved his way down field on a wild 47-yard run.

Proof of Charlie's elusiveness is the fact that he took Bangtson's pass on the left side of the field, weaved his way across the turf, and helped by a Art Anderson block stumbled into the right corner of the end zone

Although the Sioux City squad was scoreless for the first three periods, they still were able to move the ball against UNO.

Malsam, who completed 13 throws in 30 tries, found receivers open over the middle all afternoon. Aeilts totaled 78 of his rushing yards in the first three quarters.

The Chiefs finally got on the scoreboard midway through the final period. Malsam found Jim Schipull with a ten yard pass to cap the drive.

Schipull caught seven passes for 96 yards including three receptions on the scoring drive. His touchdown grab came as he tipped the ball between two Maverick defenders and caught it on the rebound.

He teamed with Malsam for the two point conversion.

UNO hoped to start a time consuming drive but had to give the ball up with four minutes left. A Frank Golwitzer punt put the ball on the Morningside 32-yard line.

The UNO defenders then put on their last minute heroics.

Kendle dropped Malsam for a 12-yard loss when the Morningside quarterback trying to pass. A screen to Dan Sanem was diagnosed by Lou King and resulted in a nine yard. loss. An incomplete pass was followed by Stan Hamann's punt to the Morningside 46.

Willie Bob Johnson returned the punt 19 yards and UNO took over with 1:21 left. McWhorter then rushed four straight times but his final carry resulted in a fumble on the Morningside nine.

Morningside took over on their own eight with 34 seconds left but on the first play from scrimmage Kozel dropped Malsam on the one-yard line. Malsam's last ditch pass across the middle was then intercepted by Zimmerman and the former Columbus star followed his blockers into the end zone for the clinching score.

UNO's win ups the Mavericks' mark to 3-0, the best start since 1962. The victory over Morningside also squared the series record at 16 wins apiece with one tie. Morningside is now 1-2 on the year.

I'D LIKE to thank the fraternity asshole who brought a brown pointer-like dog on campus. Sept. 22nd. Could you find the grey boot that the dog ran off with? One boot isn't much good this winter. Sue 553-6067.

A little carnal knowledge is a dangerous thing.

So just be careful how you use it. If you're not really serious about the gal, go easy on the English Leather, On the other hand, if you are serious, lay on the English Leather and have a ball. Use English Leather Soap, Shampoo, Shave Cream, After Shave, Deodorant, Talc...the works. And who knows, she may even teach you a little something.
